Who We Are

We are a network of women and men from different spheres of influence and in different capacities of leadership seeking to bring the whole Church together for greater impact to challenge the status quo for women and girls.

The Challenge

Women and girls are a significant part of every city, community, church, and family. They are close to or more than half of any city's population, and yet the most oppressed people group in most parts of the world. Issues concerning women's safety is of serious concern across South Asia. The United Nations brought to the world's notice the exponential growth in the statistics of violence and abuse suffered by women during the Covid-19 pandemic, by calling it the "shadow pandemic".

The Church cannot simply look the other way. We believe that as the Church, we are responsible to take part in the change that can make our cities a place where women are safe and are free to realize their true potential.

This is a call to kingdom leaders and influencers in various spheres of influence - from the Churches, Nonprofits, Government, Law Enforcement, Learning Centres, and the Marketplace to come together for the transformation of our cities for women and girls.

Vision

The vision of the Disruptive Women Movement is to facilitate strategic, God-authored disruption in cities to enable women and girls to flourish.

We bring together Churches, nonprofits, marketplace leaders, and influencers from every sphere of influence to act collectively and accelerate change!

Act together to accelerate change.

What's positive about 'Disruption'?

The term 'disruptive' means to cause trouble, and therefore to stop something from continuing as usual. Disruption in this context is about challenging norms and patterns in every context that is making justice and equal opportunity inaccessible for women.

Mission

To initiate Disruptive Women expressions across and within city movements in diverse spheres of influence to work together for the flourishing of women and girls through enhanced networking for greater impact.

BB

This is not a time for women to be shy & timid, but it is a time to join forces across our cities, to be bold in disrupting the darkness to advance His Kingdom. There is much darkness, oppression & injustice that exists. This requires women to rise (in partnership with the men) to disrupt with the gospel of Jesus to bring light and hope.

Objectives of South Asia's DW Network

- To unite women in cities to work together for Gospel disruption.
- To build allies in men and boys who will stand side by side with women for Gospel disruption.
- To equip women for leadership and influence in city movements.
- To transform the spiritual, cultural, and civic landscapes of cities for women through strategic kingdom interventions.
- To catalyze the formation of safe spaces for women and girls.
- To amplify the voices of women and girls.
- To raise up the now generation girls to disrupt darkness.
- To foster partnerships that forge the way forward for the flourishing of women and girls.

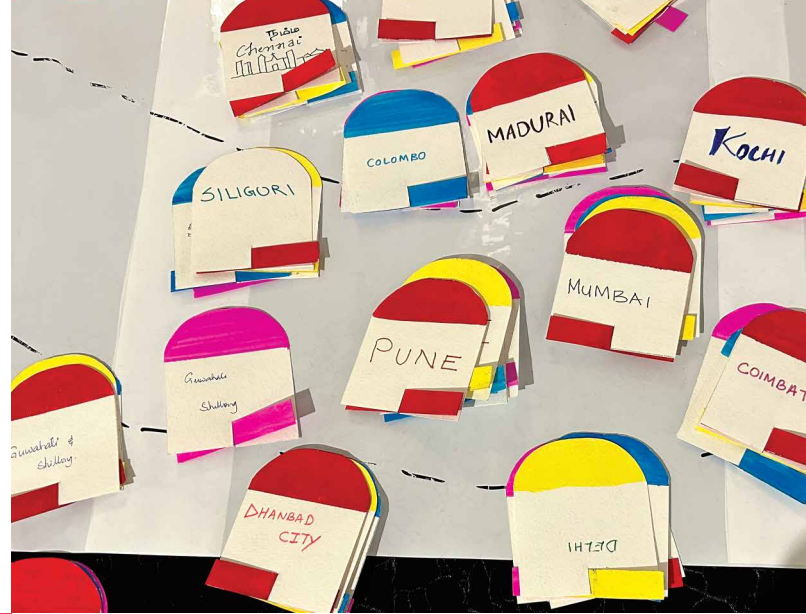

BB

We are committed to seeing the Disruptive Women Network as a critical component of Movement Day expressions in South Asia. Women and girls' voice needs to be heard across all spheres as they represent a critical mass of the South Asian population. Violence and abuse statistics in this region are among the highest in the world. City transformation cannot be complete without accelerating change for women and girls.

How We Will Achieve It

1. Catalyzing processes to include women in city movements
2. Equip women for leadership and transformational influence.
3. Identifying the gaps in cities to plan strategic interventions through collaborative efforts.
4. Bring together the whole Church, and Christian influencers in all spheres, both women and men to accelerate change.
5. Initiate DW chapters in cities across South Asia.

Women are critical for city movements as they represent the numeric strength of the church. Women also carry an empathy for the city that is critically important.
